PUBLIC COMMENTS

Rose Harmon a driver for the Wilson Cab Company, asked about church vans that had been operated during the recent COGIC conference alleging that some of the drivers of the vehicles had accepted payment for taking attendees to various locations in the city during the event. Ms. Harmon also asked the board to consider modifying the code to allow for the use of earpiece devices or hands-free phone accessories. The Director and the board addressed both questions stating that payment made to persons operating the church vans was prohibited and would be subject to enforcement action in the future and that the prohibition of cell phones and accessories while passengers are present is prohibited and the board elected not to modify the code at this time with respect to cell phone use.

Kevin Hartstock a driver for the ABC – Checker Cab Company raised a number of concerns dealing with competition from various classes of service including Airport Taxicabs, Golf carts, Trolley buses, the COGIC church vans as well as concerns about accessibility at Lambert Airport and the required hospitality training sessions.
